-- eGistics Expands Relationship with One of the Largest Outsourced Financial Services Providers in the U.S. --

DALLAS, April 19, 2010 -- eGistics, Inc., a leading provider of hosted information management solutions, today announced a major expansion of its contract with one of the largest outsourced financial services providers in the United States. Building on the companies' long relationship, eGistics will deliver hosted archive and delivery services to support the retail and wholesale lockbox services the outsourced services company will provide to one of the five largest financial institutions in the U.S. The expanded agreement will add hundreds of millions of images a year to the eGistics archive.

By using the eGistics hosted platform, customers of the outsourced financial services provider have a real-time view of their receivables images and data, anytime, and from anywhere via a broadband Internet connection. The hosted business model also eliminates the need for the provider to invest in additional storage hardware and software to support its ever-expanding image and data volume.

"This announcement validates eGistics' strong value proposition, builds on our long track record of service delivery excellence with this outsourced services provider, and strengthens our position as one of their key strategic technology partners," commented eGistics Chairman and CEO Bob Lund. "eGistics looks forward to continuing our relationship with this outsourced services provider to support their new customer initiatives and services as they grow their business even more."

eGistics will be showcasing its hosted information management solutions at NACHA's PAYMENTS 2010 conference this month at the Washington State Convention Center in Seattle. eGistics will be exhibiting in booth No. 828. In addition, PNC Bank will deliver a case study presentation on how it reduced costs, enhanced client service and streamlined compliance using eGistics' hosted technology.
