-- eGistics to Provide Hosted Archive and Exceptions Management Services to Another Top 20 U.S. Financial Institution --

DALLAS, November 28, 2011 -- eGistics, a leading provider of hosted information management solutions, today announced that the company has won a contract to provide hosted archive and exceptions management services to one of the 20 largest financial institutions in the United States.

With today's announcement, eGistics now serves nine of the top 20 commercial banks. eGistics also provides hosted archive services to four of the five largest third-party lockbox services companies in the United States.

"The migration from paper-based to electronic payments has left lockbox processors with a lot of fixed overhead that they no longer can afford. The combination of our archive's hosted delivery model and superior functionality provides banks with an appealing alternative to expensive on-premise solutions," said eGistics Executive Vice President Gary Provo. "Today's announcement further validates the superior performance and total cost of ownership of our hosted archive solutions in lockbox environments."

eGistics will deliver hosted archive and document management services to support the financial institution's retail and wholesale lockbox operations located in three major cities in the Eastern United States. Images and data will be retained in the eGistics archive for one to 11 years, depending on the requirements for individual documents. eGistics also will provide the financial institution with intra-day online decisioning capabilities, which streamlines exceptions management and speeds funds availability for treasury customers.

By using the eGistics hosted platform, the financial institution's lockbox customers will have a secure real-time view of their receivables images and data, anytime, and from anywhere. The hosted business model also eliminates the need for the financial institution to invest in additional storage hardware and software to support ever-expanding image and data volume.

Additionally, the eGistics hosted archive helps the financial institution comply with Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council (FFIEC), Payment Card Industry Data Security Standard (PCI DSS), and Health Insurance Portability and Affordability Act (HIPAA) regulations.
